FOREWORD

My purpose in publishing this book is to make it easy for the bartenders of the present day. Bartending is a "he man's job," and he has many duties to perform. He is before the public and therefore must be an actor. His audience looks to him for entertainment, consolation, protection and so forth, for a bar is really a "poor man's club."

A customer is always right—allow the proprietor to settle all arguments. Respect the customer and the proprietor, as it is through them that your job is made possible. There are many "dont's" in bartending, and here are a few of them:

1. Don't smoke on duty.
2. Don't put your feet up on the work-board.
3. Don't lean with your elbows on the bar when talking to customers.
4. Don't comment about customers.
5. Don't drink while on duty.
6. Don't argue with customers.
7. Don't put towel for glasses over your shoulder.
8. Don't "loaf" around the place where you are employed when off duty.
9. Don't get familiar or personal with employer or customers.
10. Don't break bottles with a hammer.

If you open the bar, be on time. Check your change first, then get your ice and see that it is clean. Cut your fruit, which must be fresh each day. Arrange your cherries and fruit in their respective places. Take all your shakers, mixing glasses, spoons, etc., and clean them thoroughly EVERY MORNING. See that the porter does his work as it should be done. Check your stock and make out your want list. Remove all glasses from the back bar and place a wet towel on bar. Fold it, touching each glass on bottom and side, and then wipe them with a dry towel—they will then shine as they should. Wipe your back bar thoroughly. Be sure your mirrors are clean. Replace your glasses and line them up with a yard stick. Wipe your front bar thoroughly with a damp bar towel, going in front of the bar to wipe the arm rail. Be neat and clean about your person—change coat and apron every day.

In waiting on customers be polite and always serve the ladies with napkins. See that there are matches and clean ash trays handy at all times. As soon as a customer empties a glass, remove it from the bar and rinse immediately. KEEP THE BAR DRY WITH A FRESH BAR MOP. When you find time to wipe the glasses that gather on the work-board, wipe them twice, which will remove all lint. When not busy stand with your back to the back bar, where you have control of the room.

Always use ice prongs when handling cube ice, and ice scoop for chopped ice—never use bare hands.

In closing a bar or cocktail lounge, be sure that all used glasses have been rinsed and removed from the bar and tables before closing, also wipe tables and bar thoroughly. Be careful that all doors and windows are locked and that there are no customers in the wash-rooms or booths. Never allow any friends or customers in the place of business after closing hours. You will find this convenient in arranging your day's receipts and in hiding your "bank roll." Good bartenders make good customers. Go to work five minutes ahead of time—your fellow bartenders will appreciate it.

GENERAL INFORMATION

MIXING HINTS

1. Use good ingredients.
2. Use correct glassware.
3. Glassware should be clean and dry.
4. Shake drinks vigorously and serve cold.
5. Ice should not be used the second time.
6. Superfine sugar makes a drink clearer.
7. Follow authentic recipes as given.
8. A jigger is a unit of measure, $1\frac{1}{4}$ ounces ;
a Pony, $\frac{3}{4}$ ounce.
9. A dash is equal to about 20 drops or one-quarter teaspoon.
10. Mixed drinks should not stand too long.

COCKTAILS

COCKTAILS

Cocktails have made bartenders and bars famous. Be careful and neat when making them. Make them to please the customers. All cocktails that are made with chopped ice should be SHAKEN BY HAND. Always strain shaken drinks from the SHAKER.

Cocktails made with cube-ice should be strained with mixing spoon (meaning to hold your ice in the glass with the spoon). Always have the cocktail glass cold, and have your cocktail glass in front of customer when serving. Mix your cocktails where the customer can see you. He likes to see the liqueurs you are using.

Serve a side of ice water with all cocktails.

FIZZES AND COLLINS

FIZZES AND COLLINS

Fizzes are the favorite beverage of many enthusiasts. Plain, they contain neither egg nor cream. With the white of egg added, they become "Silver," with the yolk "Golden," with both "Royal."

Pleasing and surprising variations of the many recipes given herein may be obtained by application of the above. Other equally pleasing and different beverages result by adding to a given recipe a dash of cordial or syrup, such as Benedictine, Cointreau, Absinthe, Curacao, etc.

Plain Fizzes are recommended by many as "eye openers for the morning after the night before."

JULEPS

JULEPS

This popular beverage had its inception in the Southland. It is a punch or cooler in character, but since its origination has become so popular it now deserves a classification of its own.

A properly prepared Julep will have the glass well "frosted." To accomplish this, fill the glass with shaved ice and stir slowly until the frost appears upon the outside surface. Then drain out the excess water, refill with shaved ice and prepare the beverage. "Frosting" may be hastened by wrapping the glass in a clean, dry towel.

Mint sprigs are the characteristic ingredient of this beverage. They may be crushed or not crushed. Most recipes call for bruising. Many connoisseurs prefer it not crushed, the preference of the guests may well be sought before preparing. Under either method fresh mint should be embedded in the ice at frequent intervals and a Maraschino or green cherry, together with flakes of orange, added for decoration. Straws should be served. Glasses should be the low-base (10 ounce) tumbler, with flared rim (Julep glasses).

HOT BEVERAGES

HOT BEVERAGES

TODDIES, PUNCHES, ETC.

Hot beverages are particularly well adapted to cold, wintry weather, to prevent colds, by restoring bodily temperature after becoming damp, to induce sleep and for persons threatened with chill, etc. They cover a wide range, but a few general suggestions will not come amiss.

Water or milk, where called for, should be at the point of boiling. Protect glassware with a silver spoon. Most hot beverages are heavily spiced, but this is largely at the discretion of the mixer.

Tall highball glasses (8 ounce) are proper for serving, except where otherwise noted.

Many connoisseurs prefer the use of strained honey, instead of sugar, in hot beverages.

TROPICAL DRINKS

TROPICAL DRINKS

They are very delicious and are always served very cold. Most all the drinks are served frappe. The drinks are confined to the Hawaiian or tropical places. They are all individual house drinks. The bases are Gin, Brandies and Rums. The fruit extracts and syrups used are Papaya, Pineapple, Lemon, Orange, Lime, Passion Fruit Juice and Sugar, which plays an important part.

The Cocktails are served in large fancy cocktail glasses filled with fine ice, using cut straws in serving. Garnish all drinks well. Drinks are served in long tube-shaped glasses. The ice can be made to stand all around the outside of the glass by using a metal cuff which is 5 inches tall and 12 inches in circumference, and opening on both ends. Place glass in center of ring or cuff, and pack cuff with fresh ground ice, let stand 2 minutes, pour your drink in the glass; then remove the cuff and the ice will stand. The drink is served in an iced dish.
